Suits, Spring Overcoats and Raincoats at $12.75

The Kind You Find Elsewhere at $15 to $20

THERE is no monopoly of language and, unfortunately, as yet no law against empty advertising brag. Any store can claim to sell "$15 suits for $12.75" and several stores besides this do so claim. But we do not stop there. We "show you." WE call our $12.75 suits worth $15 because $15 is the average price around town for suits of the same class. The truth of the matter is, however, that we can sell them at $12.75 because we buy them for less money than dealers doing a smaller business must pay. This is because we have the entire market to choose from. We are not wedded to any one manufacturer. We do not pin the reputation of our clothing store upon any one trade mark or label. We buy our clothing exactly as every thrifty man buys his, by examining all that is offered, selecting the best wherever

That this is a good business policy, let our steadily increasing sale-figures testify. We wish no better evidence. The testimony for you individually, however, is to be found in the suits themselves and in the prices we ask for them. We therefore place these in evidence:

Spring Overcoats-a most cominch coat or the more conser-vative 42-inch and 44-inch

Single or Double Breasted Sults -of snappy shadow plaids, stripes and club checks; also serges; all sizes, from 33 to 50 $12.75

Scarfs and Center Pieces At About Half Prices

THIS is a most unusual offer. The goods con-cerned are the kind which are not often seen on a bargain table. They are Renaissance Scarfs and Center Pieces with all-linen centers (not the union centers commonly called linen), embellished with hand work Renaissance lace by clever Japanese

The designs are beautiful and the workmanship exquis-ite. The prices are, on the average, a little less than half the figures for which such goods would ordinarily

These goods were brought from Japan by a very prom-inent New York importer. They were so beautiful and appeared to him such good values at their prices that he seems to have imported too much. At all events he ofunsold at a price which makes this advertisement possible. Center Pieces - 18 inch,
